

My Philosophies

I have here under my philosophies some items that I deem essential. One of my favorite stories is what Harvey Penick told Davis Love III when he first went on tour. He told him to go to dinner with good putters. Because in many ways who we have as our close friends, and in our foursome has a lot to do with our lives. People with good character, good putters if you would, are very worthwhile not only in golf but also in life.

I have a nice leather bookmark (a physical one, not an electronic one) that is entitled 'Golf'. I think it states with great clarity and insight this game that we so fondly enjoy.

It is a contest, a duel or a melee, calling for skill, courage, strategy, and self-control.

It is a test of temper, a trial of honor, a revealer of character. It affords the chance to play the man and act the gentleman.

It includes companionship with friends and opportunities for courtesy, kindness and generosity to an opponent.

Finally, I think that the following piece by Paul Harvey gives a lot of food for thought. I think it reflects back on some simpler times when basics in life were not taken for granted nor basic life experiences sidestepped.

We tried so hard to make things better for our kids that we made them worse. For my grandchildren, I'd like better.

I'd really like for them to know about hand me down clothes and homemade ice cream and leftover meat loaf sandwiches, I really would.

I hope you learn humility by being humiliated, and that you learn honesty by being cheated.

I hope you learn to make your own bed and mow the lawn and wash the car. And I really hope nobody gives you a brand new car when you are sixteen.

It will be good if at least one time you can see puppies born and your old dog put to sleep.

I hope you get a black eye fighting for something you believe in.

I hope you have to share a bedroom with your younger brother. And it's all right if you have to draw a line down the middle of the room, but when he wants to crawl under the covers with you because he's scared, I hope you let him.

When you want to see a movie and your little brother wants to tag along, I hope you'll let him. I hope you have to walk uphill to school with your friends and that you live in a town where you can do it safely. On rainy days when you have to catch a ride, I hope you don't ask your driver to drop you two blocks away so you won't be seen riding with someone as uncool as your Mom.

If you want a slingshot, I hope your Dad teaches you how to make one instead of buying one.

I hope you learn to dig in the dirt and read books.

When you learn to use computers, I hope you also learn to add and subtract in your head.

I hope you get teased by your friends when you have your first crush on a girl, and when you talk back to your mother that you learn what Ivory soap tastes like.

May you skin your knee climbing a mountain, burn your hand on a stove and stick your tongue on a frozen flagpole.

I don't care if you try a beer once, but I hope you don't like it. And if a friend offers you dope or a joint, I hope you realize he is not your friend.

I sure hope you make time to sit on a porch with your Grandpa and go fishing with your Uncle.

May you feel sorrow at a funeral and joy during the holidays.

I hope your mother punishes you when you throw a baseball through your neighbor's window and that she hugs you and kisses you at Christmas time when you give her a plaster mold of your hand.

These things I wish for you - tough times and disappointment, hard work and happiness. To me, it's the only way to appreciate life.

Written with a pen. Sealed with a kiss. I'm here for you. And if I die before you do, I'll go to heaven and wait for you.

Paul Harvey
